

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

COQUETRY, with a large and capital B, will find its way out to Chestnut Hill this afternoon to attend the coming out party of Margaret Winsor Harris...

Among the older women who will receive this afternoon will be Mrs. T. Henry Dixon, mother of Emily Welsh; Mrs. Albert Allee Jackson and Miss Elizabeth Harris, an aunt of the debutante.

The other buds who will be in the receiving party will be Emily Welsh, Gainer Hald, Mary Lovering, Patty Borie, Dorothy Newbold, Elizabeth Trotter, Pauline Denzika, Mary and Elizabeth Packard, Anne Meira, Meta and Alice Janney, Eleanor Pepper, who made her debut last year...

The Walter Lippincott have returned to Alcott, their home in Bryn Mawr, after having spent most of the summer cruising in their yacht Lady Betty. Their daughter, Mrs. Stricker Coles, and her family occupied the Lippincott's James-town home and decided at first to stay there until toward the end of this month...

Mr. Theodore Justice will give a talk on "Riding Recollections" to the members of the Huntingdon Valley Club at a dinner at the clubhouse at Willow Grove, Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williamson have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Williamson, and Mr. Coffin Colket Wilson, Jr., on Saturday, November 1, at 1:30 o'clock, in St. Mark's Church. At home cards were enclosed for Thursdays, January 4, 11 and 18, from 4 until 7 o'clock, at 2318 South Twenty-first street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hill Clark, of Highlands avenue, returned from Southampton, L. I., where they occupied their summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williamson have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Williamson, and Mr. Coffin Colket Wilson, Jr., on Saturday, November 1, at 1:30 o'clock, in St. Mark's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wilmsen and their son, Mr. Joseph Wilmsen, of Elkins Park, are now being spending the summer at their camp near Camden, Me., have returned home.

Mr. Paxson Decker, of Bryn Mawr, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Samuel Blipham Bowen, of Germantown.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wetherill, of 6455 Germantown avenue, returned yesterday from Jamestown, where they spent the summer and early autumn.

Mr. John Gustine and Mrs. Thomas Berry, of 1813 Pine street, have issued cards for a series of dances at the Rittenhouse, which will take place on the following dates: November 17, December 8 and 25, and April 18, 5 and 19, February 2, March 2 and April 18, 5 and 19.

The entertainment committee of the Overbrook Golf Club has announced the following dates for dances during the coming season: October 11, October 25, November 1, which will be a Halloween affair; November 8, November 22, a novelty dance; December 29, a novelty dance. The Halloween dance will be a fancy costume party.

Mr. Francis C. Richter, of 3304 North Broad street, has her daughter, Mrs. P. Frederic Gether, of Hartford, Conn., as her guest for several weeks. Miss Beatrice Olive Richter, who is spending a fortnight in Kennett Square, Pa.

Mr. Hakon E. Norbom, of 217 East Johnson street, Germantown, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Elinor D. Loof, of 217 North Front street, to Mr. Samuel Heins, of 730 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh. The wedding will take place next summer.

The wedding will take place in Christ Church, on Wednesday, October 18, and will be followed by a reception and breakfast at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Mr. Hanover and his bride will live at White Plains, N. Y., and will be at home after December 1.

Miss Norbom was a member of the class of 1916, Germantown Friends' school, where she took a prominent part in the various athletic projects.

Mr. Elizabeth J. McBride and her son have just returned from a four month's trip through the West.

Mr. Philip Loof, of 242 Fairmount road, announces the engagement of his sister, Miss Elinor D. Loof, of 217 North Front street, to Mr. Samuel Heins, of 730 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth A. Holmes, of Oak Lane, to Mr. Raymond F. Ferrout, of Germantown, on Friday, October 20, at the home of the bride at 730 o'clock. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. Walter Jordan. A reception will follow.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

Miss Susan Lynch Bruce, whose marriage to Mr. Samuel H. Chase will take place on Friday evening, December 8, in honor of Miss Katharine Christiana Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea, and Miss Dorothy Emlen Newbold, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emlen Newbold.

Mr. and Mrs. Armatt Brown, of St. David's, will give a dinner on Saturday evening, October 28, at the Philadelphia Country Club in honor of their cousin, Miss Katherine Christina Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

Miss Susan Lynch Bruce, whose marriage to Mr. Samuel H. Chase will take place on Friday evening, December 8, in honor of Miss Katharine Christiana Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea, and Miss Dorothy Emlen Newbold, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emlen Newbold.

Mr. and Mrs. Armatt Brown, of St. David's, will give a dinner on Saturday evening, October 28, at the Philadelphia Country Club in honor of their cousin, Miss Katherine Christina Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

MRS. E. NISBETT MITCHELL

Mrs. Mitchell is a popular young matron living at Ardmore. She is actively engaged in charity affairs and directed the amateur theatricals at a recent lawn fete.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williamson have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Williamson, and Mr. Coffin Colket Wilson, Jr., on Saturday, November 1, at 1:30 o'clock, in St. Mark's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wilmsen and their son, Mr. Joseph Wilmsen, of Elkins Park, are now being spending the summer at their camp near Camden, Me., have returned home.

Mr. Paxson Decker, of Bryn Mawr, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Samuel Blipham Bowen, of Germantown.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wetherill, of 6455 Germantown avenue, returned yesterday from Jamestown, where they spent the summer and early autumn.

Mr. John Gustine and Mrs. Thomas Berry, of 1813 Pine street, have issued cards for a series of dances at the Rittenhouse, which will take place on the following dates: November 17, December 8 and 25, and April 18, 5 and 19, February 2, March 2 and April 18, 5 and 19.

The entertainment committee of the Overbrook Golf Club has announced the following dates for dances during the coming season: October 11, October 25, November 1, which will be a Halloween affair; November 8, November 22, a novelty dance; December 29, a novelty dance. The Halloween dance will be a fancy costume party.

Mr. Francis C. Richter, of 3304 North Broad street, has her daughter, Mrs. P. Frederic Gether, of Hartford, Conn., as her guest for several weeks. Miss Beatrice Olive Richter, who is spending a fortnight in Kennett Square, Pa.

Mr. Hakon E. Norbom, of 217 East Johnson street, Germantown, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Elinor D. Loof, of 217 North Front street, to Mr. Samuel Heins, of 730 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh. The wedding will take place next summer.

The wedding will take place in Christ Church, on Wednesday, October 18, and will be followed by a reception and breakfast at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Mr. Hanover and his bride will live at White Plains, N. Y., and will be at home after December 1.

Miss Norbom was a member of the class of 1916, Germantown Friends' school, where she took a prominent part in the various athletic projects.

Mr. Elizabeth J. McBride and her son have just returned from a four month's trip through the West.

Mr. Philip Loof, of 242 Fairmount road, announces the engagement of his sister, Miss Elinor D. Loof, of 217 North Front street, to Mr. Samuel Heins, of 730 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth A. Holmes, of Oak Lane, to Mr. Raymond F. Ferrout, of Germantown, on Friday, October 20, at the home of the bride at 730 o'clock. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. Walter Jordan. A reception will follow.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

Miss Susan Lynch Bruce, whose marriage to Mr. Samuel H. Chase will take place on Friday evening, December 8, in honor of Miss Katharine Christiana Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea, and Miss Dorothy Emlen Newbold, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emlen Newbold.

Mr. and Mrs. Armatt Brown, of St. David's, will give a dinner on Saturday evening, October 28, at the Philadelphia Country Club in honor of their cousin, Miss Katherine Christina Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

Miss Susan Lynch Bruce, whose marriage to Mr. Samuel H. Chase will take place on Friday evening, December 8, in honor of Miss Katharine Christiana Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea, and Miss Dorothy Emlen Newbold, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emlen Newbold.

Mr. and Mrs. Armatt Brown, of St. David's, will give a dinner on Saturday evening, October 28, at the Philadelphia Country Club in honor of their cousin, Miss Katherine Christina Lea, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lea.

Miss Margaret Berwind will give a debutante luncheon on Monday at Welwood, her home in Radnor.

Miss Kate Cheesman, of Garrison-on-the-Ridge, spent the week-end with Miss Katharine Hancock at The Poplars, her home in St. David's.

HEART OF THE SUNSET By REX BEACH

friend or a client with such faint praise," said Alaire. "Oh, I don't mean it that way. I'm almost like one of those kids, and I've been keenly interested in watching his traits develop. I'm interested in heredity. I've watched it in Ed's case, for instance. If the parents' traits are passed on to their children, again he is passed into silence, nodding to himself. 'Yes, nature mixes her prescriptions like any druggist. I'm glad you and Ed have no babies. I'm glad Alaire murmured something unintelligible. 'And yet,' the lawyer continued, 'many people are cursed with an inheritance as bad, or worse, than Ed's.' 'Dave? Oh, nothing in particular. I was just moralizing. It's a privilege of age, my dear.'"

CHAPTER V A JOURNEY AND A DARK MAN ALAIRE'S preparations for the journey to La Feria were made with little delay. Owing to the condition of affairs across the border, Ellsworth had thought it well to provide her with letters from the most influential Mexicans in the neighborhood; and it was more, in order to pave her way toward a settlement of her claim he succeeded in getting a telegram through to Mexico City—no mean achievement, with most of the wires in rebel hands and the remainder burdened with military business. But Ellsworth's influence was not bounded by the Rio Grande.

It was his advice that Alaire present her side of the case to the local military authorities before making formal representation to the Federalist not at all, and it was an open secret that financial assistance to the uprising was rendered from some mysterious source. The very presence of American troops along the border was construed by Mexicans as a threat against President Potosi and an encouragement to the cause of intervention. In the nature of a reprisal, the military antagonism existing between the two peoples.

So it was that Ellsworth, while he did his best to see to it that his client should make the journey to Mexico with every courtesy, doubted the wisdom of the undertaking and hoped for no practical result. Alaire took Dolores with her, and for main escort she selected after some deliberation, Jose Sanchez, her horsebreaker. Jose was not an ideal choice, but since Benito could not well be spared, no better was available. Sanchez had some force and initiative, at least, and Alaire had no reason to doubt his loyalty.

The party went to Pueblo by motor—an unpleasant trip, for the road followed the river and ran through a lagoonous country, unpaved save for an occasional good road, and his family, or a glaring-hot village of some half-dozen cubical houses crowding on the river bank as if it crowded over from Mexico soil. This road remained much as the first ox carts had laid it out; the hills were gashed by arroyos, some of which were difficult to negotiate, and in consequence the journey was from an automobilist's point of view, decidedly slow. The first night the travelers were forced to spend at a mud jacal, encircled, like some of the jungle dwellings, by a thick brush barricade.

Jose Sanchez was in his element here. He posed, he strutted, he bragged, he strove to impress his countrymen by every device. Jose was, indeed, rather a handsome fellow, with both hair and beard, and bearing that marked him as superior to the common peon, and, having dressed himself elaborately for this journey, he made the most of his opportunities for showing off. Nothing would do him but a baile, and a baile he had. Once the arrangements were made, other Mexicans appeared mysteriously until the party was ready to start, and until late into the night they danced upon the hard-packed earth of the yard. Alaire felt asleep to the sounds of fife and snare and scraping in time to a wheezy violin.

Arriving at Pueblo on the following day, Alaire secured her passports from the Federal headquarters across the Rio Grande, while Jose attended to the railroad tickets. In the second morning after leaving home the party was borne southward into Mexico. It was not until midway that the first interruption occurred for them the train pulled in upon a siding and, after an interminable delay, it tramped that a northbound troop train was expected.

Alaire's first thought was: "Soon you will behold the fower of the Mexican army, he told Alaire. 'You will see thousands of Longorio's veterans, every man of them a friend or a client with such faint praise,' said Alaire. 'Oh, I don't mean it that way. I'm almost like one of those kids, and I've been keenly interested in watching his traits develop. I'm interested in heredity. I've watched it in Ed's case, for instance. If the parents' traits are passed on to their children, again he is passed into silence, nodding to himself. 'Yes, nature mixes her prescriptions like any druggist. I'm glad you and Ed have no babies. I'm glad Alaire murmured something unintelligible. 'And yet,' the lawyer continued, 'many people are cursed with an inheritance as bad, or worse, than Ed's.' 'Dave? Oh, nothing in particular. I was just moralizing. It's a privilege of age, my dear.'"

CHAPTER V A JOURNEY AND A DARK MAN ALAIRE'S preparations for the journey to La Feria were made with little delay. Owing to the condition of affairs across the border, Ellsworth had thought it well to provide her with letters from the most influential Mexicans in the neighborhood; and it was more, in order to pave her way toward a settlement of her claim he succeeded in getting a telegram through to Mexico City—no mean achievement, with most of the wires in rebel hands and the remainder burdened with military business. But Ellsworth's influence was not bounded by the Rio Grande.

It was his advice that Alaire present her side of the case to the local military authorities before making formal representation to the Federalist not at all, and it was an open secret that financial assistance to the uprising was rendered from some mysterious source. The very presence of American troops along the border was construed by Mexicans as a threat against President Potosi and an encouragement to the cause of intervention. In the nature of a reprisal, the military antagonism existing between the two peoples.

So it was that Ellsworth, while he did his best to see to it that his client should make the journey to Mexico with every courtesy, doubted the wisdom of the undertaking and hoped for no practical result. Alaire took Dolores with her, and for main escort she selected after some deliberation, Jose Sanchez, her horsebreaker. Jose was not an ideal choice, but since Benito could not well be spared, no better was available. Sanchez had some force and initiative, at least, and Alaire had no reason to doubt his loyalty.

The party went to Pueblo by motor—an unpleasant trip, for the road followed the river and ran through a lagoonous country, unpaved save for an occasional good road, and his family, or a glaring-hot village of some half-dozen cubical houses crowding on the river bank as if it crowded over from Mexico soil. This road remained much as the first ox carts had laid it out; the hills were gashed by arroyos, some of which were difficult to negotiate, and in consequence the journey was from an automobilist's point of view, decidedly slow. The first night the travelers were forced to spend at a mud jacal, encircled, like some of the jungle dwellings, by a thick brush barricade.

Jose Sanchez was in his element here. He posed, he strutted, he bragged, he strove to impress his countrymen by every device. Jose was, indeed, rather a handsome fellow, with both hair and beard, and bearing that marked him as superior to the common peon, and, having dressed himself elaborately for this journey, he made the most of his opportunities for showing off. Nothing would do him but a baile, and a baile he had. Once the arrangements were made, other Mexicans appeared mysteriously until the party was ready to start, and until late into the night they danced upon the hard-packed earth of the yard. Alaire felt asleep to the sounds of fife and snare and scraping in time to a wheezy violin.

Arriving at Pueblo on the following day, Alaire secured her passports from the Federal headquarters across the Rio Grande, while Jose attended to the railroad tickets. In the second morning after leaving home the party was borne southward into Mexico. It was not until midway that the first interruption occurred for them the train pulled in upon a siding and, after an interminable delay, it tramped that a northbound troop train was expected.

Alaire's first thought was: "Soon you will behold the fower of the Mexican army, he told Alaire. 'You will see thousands of Longorio's veterans, every man of them a friend or a client with such faint praise,' said Alaire. 'Oh, I don't mean it that way. I'm almost like one of those kids, and I've been keenly interested in watching his traits develop. I'm interested in heredity. I've watched it in Ed's case, for instance. If the parents' traits are passed on to their children, again he is passed into silence, nodding to himself. 'Yes, nature mixes her prescriptions like any druggist. I'm glad you and Ed have no babies. I'm glad Alaire murmured something unintelligible. 'And yet,' the lawyer continued, 'many people are cursed with an inheritance as bad, or worse, than Ed's.' 'Dave? Oh, nothing in particular. I was just moralizing. It's a privilege of age, my dear.'"

CHAPTER V A JOURNEY AND A DARK MAN ALAIRE'S preparations for the journey to La Feria were made with little delay. Owing to the condition of affairs across the border, Ellsworth had thought it well to provide her with letters from the most influential Mexicans in the neighborhood; and it was more, in order to pave her way toward a settlement of her claim he succeeded in getting a telegram through to Mexico City—no mean achievement, with most of the wires in rebel hands and the remainder burdened with military business. But Ellsworth's influence was not bounded by the Rio Grande.

It was his advice that Alaire present her side of the case to the local military authorities before making formal representation to the Federalist not at all, and it was an open secret that financial assistance to the uprising was rendered from some mysterious source. The very presence of American troops along the border was construed by Mexicans as a threat against President Potosi and an encouragement to the cause of intervention. In the nature of a reprisal, the military antagonism existing between the two peoples.

So it was that Ellsworth, while he did his best to see to it that his client should make the journey to Mexico with every courtesy, doubted the wisdom of the undertaking and hoped for no practical result. Alaire took Dolores with her, and for main escort she selected after some deliberation, Jose Sanchez, her horsebreaker. Jose was not an ideal choice, but since Benito could not well be spared, no better was available. Sanchez had some force and initiative, at least, and Alaire had no reason to doubt his loyalty.

"You will see what a monster this Longorio is," he declared. "It was like him to steal your beautiful cattle; he would steal a crucifix. Once there was a fine ranch owned by a man who had two lovely daughters—girls of great responsibility and refinement. But the man was a Catholic. Longorio killed him—he and his men killed everybody on the hacienda except the daughters, and those he captured. He took them with him, and for no good purpose, either, as you can imagine. Naturally the poor creatures were nearly dead with fright, but as they rode along the older one began talking with Longorio's soldiers. She made friends with them. She pretended to care nothing about her fate; she behaved like a bold person, and the soldiers laughed. They liked her spirit, God pity them! Finally she declared she was a famous shot with a pistol, and she continued to boast until one of her guards gave her his weapon with which to show her skill. Then what? Before they could hinder her she turned in her saddle and shot her younger sister through the back. Himself she destroyed with a bullet in her breast. Every word in the sacred truth, senora. Longorio's soul is stained with the blood of those two innocents."

"I've heard many stories like that, from both sides," Alaire said, gravely. (CONTINUED TOMORROW)

Pittsburgh Welcomes Guardsmen PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11.—Governor Brumbaugh joined with Father Pitt in extending a "hip, hip, hooray" greeting to the Tenth Regiment boys when they arrived this morning from the Mexican border.

AUTUMN RESORTS ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Hotel Dennis. Open all seasons of the year. A recognized standard of excellence. Camerons 600. WALTER J. BOBBY.

THE LEADING RESORT HOTEL OF THE WORLD Marlborough-Blenheim. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. JORDAN WHITE & SONS COMPANY.

TRAMORE. Has set a new standard of service, comfort & beauty. LARGEST FIRST CLASS HOTEL IN THE WORLD. 650 CHESTNUT ST. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

STEAMSHIPS SOUTH AMERICA Grand Circle Tour. NOVEMBER 8TH. Send for prospectus to American Express Travel Dept., 1127 Chestnut Street. Phone Walnut 4810.

STANFORD COLLEGE. "The West Point of the Keystone State". PENNSYLVANIA Military College. Separate Preparatory School. TRAIN MEN TO COMMAND. U. S. Army Officer Detailed. Best equipped. All athletic degrees in Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Surveying, Public Speaking, Education, Engineering, and other subjects. Interesting classes in application. Call or phone. Office 211.

NEFF COLLEGE. 1736 Chestnut Street. Blake Tutoring School. Rapid preparation for Yale, Harvard, Princeton or other leading universities. Fine classical and scientific instruction. Boys admitted at any time of year. For program and views of buildings and campus, New York Office at 17 Fifth Avenue.

THE HOLMAN SCHOOL. 2304 Locust St. Philadelphia. Montessori through College Preparation. Domestic Science in intermediate grades and in high school. Latin, French, German, Italian, Spanish, and other languages. Call or phone. Office 211.

PALMS SCHOOL. Their years at 17th and Chestnut streets. Business, shorthand and secretarial courses. DANCING. ASHER'S COB. 212 and WALNUT. Class every Tuesday 8:30-9:30. SWIMMING SCHOOL. OPEN ALL YEAR.

WENONAH MILITARY ACADEMY. 13 miles from Philadelphia. In town without factories or saloons. U. S. Army Officer detailed. DR. C. H. LORENCE, President. 1714 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. Box 418, Wenonah, N. J.

Young Ladies and Girls Phila. School of Design for Women. Design, Normal and Fine Art Illustration. Block 418, Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

GERMANTOWN, PA. SEVEN SCHOOL FOR GIRLS. Open October 2. Miss Mary Bentley, Principal.

Conservatories of Music and Instructors. SIGHT SINGING SCHOOL. PRIVATE AND CLASS INSTRUCTION. ANNE McDONOUGH. DIRECTOR. Choral Union, Phila. Male Choral, and at Public High Singing Classes. 1714 Chestnut St., Phone Locust 2623.

James C. Warhurst. Violin, Piano and Trombone. 1230 Chestnut Street. KURTZ VOICE STUDIOS. 10 S. 12th St. Catalogue on Request. Samuel Dunk. 59 S. 12th St. ACKROYD. 418 Chestnut St.

Van Leer. Voice Development. 1211 Chestnut St. SAUDER. 1211 Chestnut St. LEEFSON-HILL. 1211 Chestnut St.

MICHEL BONI, Tenor. VOICE DEVELOPMENT. 1211 Chestnut St. VAN LEEER. VOICE DEVELOPMENT. 1211 Chestnut St.

SAUDER. 1211 Chestnut St. LEEFSON-HILL. 1211 Chestnut St.